History

Founded in 1969, the CHPPD section provides an engaging forum for health and policy professionals and students to share information and to debate critical issues.

Who We Are

Professionals, students, retirees, community health workers, advocates, philanthropists, professors, government officers, epidemiologists, educators, regulators. And more!

Educate

Present at the APHA Annual Meeting. Review abstracts. Moderate meetings. Organize webinars.

Articulate

Review policy papers. Write proposed policies. Advocate for health policy change.

Participate

Join colleagues from around the nation in bi-monthly conference calls. Be a leader.

A Dialogue and Action Nexus for Community Health Planning & Policy Leaders
The Community Health Planning & Policy Development (CHPPD) section will work to develop and advocate for health planning, policies and practices that promote health equity, community empowerment and social justice.
