

PUBLIC HEALTH FUNDER NETWORK

Created in 2013, the Public Health Funder Network (PHFN) is a community of grantmakers, donors and APHA members who recognize that philanthropy serves an important role in the improvement of population health outcomes and the overall health of communities.

We see philanthropy as a catalyst to drive change through innovative strategies and partnerships with local stakeholders.

We bring together funders from across multiple sectors to solve complex public health challenges, inspire public health innovation and promote leadership.

We seek to:

- Build an increasingly informed and transparent public health funding community
- Impact health outcomes by investing private resources judiciously in communities served
- Promote an interdisciplinary approach bringing together practitioners, funders, and leaders in diverse fields to engage in multi-dimensional dialogue

Our activities:

- Sponsor peer learning sessions to facilitate cross-sector dialogue and share best practices
- Create opportunities for diverse stakeholders to network at APHA
- Build on-going relationships and connect with funders at national, regional and local levels
