'Ma, just let go... Save yourself'

By Di Yap

INGOSIBAN CITY—High school teacher Berasdana Terega, 48, would never forget the last words of her daughter.

"Ma, just let go. Save your self," said the girl, whose body was pained by swollen joints, after being bitten thrashed by Super typhoon "Yolanda."

"I was holding her and I kept telling her to hang on, that I was going to bring her up. But she just gave up," said Terega, her face contorted in grief.

The sun was shining brightly over the deadly landfall of the typhoon, casting a blinding light on the misery that had descended upon the MA, JUST GET GOING
