Dear Majority Leader Schumer, Speaker Johnson, Chairman Wyden, Chairwoman McMorris Rodgers, Ranking Member Crapo, and Ranking Member Pallone,

We, the undersigned organizations representing consumers, family members, providers, advocates, nonprofit and other health plans, and additional stakeholders, are committed to strengthening peoples' access to high-quality health coverage and care. We urge you to support 12-month continuous eligibility for adults in Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) by passing the Stabilize Medicaid and CHIP Coverage Act (H.R. 5434 and S. 3138). We are grateful for your work in passing nationwide 12-month continuous eligibility for all children in Medicaid and CHIP through the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2023. We urge you to continue this important work by supporting stable coverage for adults as well.

Medicaid and CHIP provide critical health coverage to more than 80 million Americans, including children, pregnant people, people with disabilities, low-income adults, and older adults. Together, these programs are a lifeline for millions of American families, covering more people than any other in the nation, and in particular serve as the largest payer for behavioral health care. Given the importance of Medicaid and CHIP, serious issues must be addressed to stabilize coverage for the people they serve. Collectively, we are concerned that millions of people in Medicaid and CHIP lose their coverage within a year – despite often still being eligible – only to re-enroll within a few months. This back and forth is known as “eligibility churn” and is caused by inefficient paperwork, overly burdensome reporting requirements, or temporary income fluctuations. Specifically for dually eligible beneficiaries who are jointly enrolled in Medicaid and Medicare, the most common reason for churn is due to challenges with complex redetermination requirements – not a change in income or eligibility.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, Medicaid enrollees were protected by the continuous eligibility provision built into the Families First Coronavirus Relief Act's funding increase to states, which temporarily halted eligibility churn for people with Medicaid. This policy yielded significant benefits to individuals with Medicaid, leading, for example, to more individuals retaining coverage during the postpartum period and reducing uninsurance overall. As states have been “unwinding” the continuous eligibility provision over the past year and a half, enrollees are once again facing eligibility churn.

Even a small gap in coverage can have catastrophic effects on an individual’s access to care and health outcomes; we know that interruptions in coverage worsen health outcomes and lead to avoidable hospitalizations or emergency room care for mental health disorders, asthma, and diabetes. Coverage gaps also raise the average monthly cost associated with covering a Medicaid enrollee and result in higher avoidable administrative costs for states, health care providers, and health plans. Typically, an adult on Medicaid is covered for less than 12 months of the year; non-elderly, non-disabled adults are only covered for about 8.6 months in a given year, while older adults and enrollees with disabilities are covered for about 10 months. Research demonstrates that low-income individuals experiencing income volatility and the resulting loss of Medicaid eligibility do not transition to other forms of insurance, such as Marketplace or employer-sponsored coverage, and instead become uninsured. Further, studies show that communities of color are the most likely to experience income volatility each year, and therefore most likely to experience short periods of uninsurance before churning once again onto Medicaid.

A nationwide policy of 12-month continuous eligibility for all adults in Medicaid and CHIP will allow for continuous and stable enrollment and for these programs to operate more like private coverage and Medicare. Stability in Medicaid and CHIP coverage will reduce bureaucracy for states that currently conduct repeated eligibility determinations for enrollees, and will relieve excessive burden on providers that strive to ensure their patients retain coverage and access to care. It will also help health providers and plans more readily maintain continuity of care management, which is vital to keeping individuals healthier, and ensure that provider panels remain more accurate. Continuous eligibility for adults protects children too, by aligning children’s and parents’ coverage while reducing administrative burden, financial stress, and medical debt for families. In fact, recent research found that households would save $1 billion in health care costs if 12-month continuous eligibility were enacted for adults.

Support for continuous eligibility continues to grow. While 12-month continuous eligibility for children is a nationwide policy as of January 2024, states have to go through the lengthy process of submitting a Section 1115 waiver to provide the same policy for adults. Despite this hurdle, five states provide 12-month continuous eligibility to all or some adults, and more states are pursuing the policy. States are also using their Section 1115 waiver authority to provide multi-year continuous eligibility to children, and the Biden Administration included a state option for such a policy in its Budget Proposal for Fiscal Year 2025. Further, the recently finalized Streamlining Eligibility and Enrollment final rule makes good progress in making it easier for enrollees to retain their Medicaid and CHIP coverage.

Together, we ask Congress to build on this momentum by supporting and passing 12-month continuous eligibility for adults through the Stabilize Medicaid and CHIP Coverage Act (H.R. 5434 and S. 3138) to improve coverage and access to care for millions of Americans.

Sincerely,

National
