Conflicts of interest (competing interests) include facts known to a participant in the policy statement development process that if revealed later, would make a reasonable reader feel misled or deceived (or an author or reviewer feel defensive). Conflicts of interest may influence the judgment of authors and reviewers; these conflicts often are not immediately apparent to others or to the reviewer. They may be personal, commercial, political, academic or financial.

Financial interests may include employment, research funding (received or pending), stock or share ownership, patents, payment for lectures or travel, consultancies, nonfinancial support or any fiduciary interest in the company. The perception or appearance of a conflict of interest, without regard to substance, may also create conflict because trust is eroded among all participants.

All such interests (or their absence) must be declared in writing by authors upon submission of the proposed policy statement. If any are declared, they will be included with the policy statement proposal during the review process. If there is doubt about whether a circumstance represents a conflict, it should be disclosed.

Required Disclosure: During the past 12 months have you, or your spouse or partner had a personal, commercial, political, academic or financial interest or relationship that might potentially bias and/or impact content of the proposed policy statement:  Yes  No

If yes, please list the interest or relationship:
