Dear Member of Congress:

We write to express our deep concern about the White House rescissions package (Rescission proposal no. R25-1) dated May 28, 2025. While the White House argues that these rescissions will make the United States safer, stronger and more prosperous, we, the undersigned 78 organizations, lament the proposal will achieve the opposite.

We urge you to oppose the rescission of any foreign assistance funds related to urgent human needs, including food, medical and humanitarian aid, and to global stability and resilience, such as peacebuilding, poverty-focused development assistance, climate resilience and good governance.

This rescissions package seeks to make legal the Trump administration's draconian cuts to foreign assistance programs. Providing Congressional approval for these cuts will result in otherwise preventable deaths, the spread of infectious diseases and antibiotic resistance, and increased global poverty, instability and violence. These cuts will not only have a devastating impact on civilians across the globe, they will also make Americans more vulnerable and less safe. These cuts will create vacuums in leadership that allow infectious disease, instability and violence to spread, undermining U.S. national security interests, disrupting U.S. trade, harming U.S. credibility as a steadfast partner to its allies, and allowing malign actors to increase their influence.

The constitution is clear: Congress guides, not obeys, the executive branch on matters of federal spending. We strongly urge Congress to protect its constitutional authority and reject these rescissions.

Rescinding these previously appropriated funds for foreign assistance defies the long-held values of the United States and the current views of its people. A Pew Research Center survey found that 68% of U.S. adults wanted to maintain or increase spending on foreign aid, and this past February the University of Maryland found that 89% of Americans believed the U.S. should invest at least 1% of its federal budget in foreign assistance, in line with current Congressional appropriations. In fact, the majority of Republicans said the U.S. should invest at least 5% of the federal budget in foreign assistance, with majorities of Democrats and Independents calling for at least 10%.

Americans are generous. In 1917 President Wilson established the U.S. Food Agency and, shortly thereafter, the American Relief Administration (ARA), which supplied 34-million tons of American food, clothing and supplies to Europeans affected by World War I. The ARA leveraged Congressional appropriations and private donations to provide critical rations to Soviet civilians during the Povolzhye famine. Over a century later, this legacy of generosity has continued through both Congressional appropriations and Americans' pocketbooks. In 2023, Americans donated $29.94 billion in private charitable giving to organizations focused on international aid, development, peace and humanitarian relief.

However, private philanthropy cannot match the scope and scale of U.S. government funding, material support, and influence. Federal investment in foreign assistance is irreplaceable and essential. Prior to the administration's cuts to foreign assistance programs, the United States was the world's largest provider of food, medical and humanitarian assistance—while spending less on foreign assistance as a proportion of its income than many of its allies. Other donors cannot fill this gap, as neither private philanthropy—whether from foundations, corporations, faith groups, or individuals—nor donor nation has the influence, wealth or prosperity of the United States.

Approving this rescission package would be a death sentence for thousands in the coming years, with serious consequences for the security and health of Americans. Without this tool, the U.S. government will be limited in its ability to constructively prevent and mitigate crises at a time when global violence is on the rise. And as programs to address humanitarian crises and prevent the spread of violence and disease shutter, the inevitable impact will be a vacuum in leadership that other nations and malign actors will be eager to fill.

Congress has supported foreign assistance in a bipartisan manner for decades, as most recently seen when members approved funding for foreign assistance just a few months ago in the FY 2025 Full-Year Continuing Appropriations and Extensions Act.

We strongly urge Congress to protect its constitutional authority and to oppose the rescission of any foreign assistance funds.

Sincerely,

Alliance for Peacebuilding

Alliance of Baptists

Alliance to End Hunger

The Alliance for Diplomacy and Justice

American Friends Service Committee

American Jewish World Service (AJWS)

American Public Health Association

Amnesty International USA

Anethum Global

Bread for the World

Center for Gender & Refugee Studies

Center for International Policy Advocacy

Church of the Brethren, Office of Peacebuilding and Policy

Church World Service

Citizens for Global Solutions (CGS)

CODEPINK

Congregation of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepherd, U.S. Provinces

Council for Global Equality

Disabled Children's Fund

EngenderHealth

The Episcopal Church

Evangelical Lutheran Church in America

Foreign Policy for America

FP2030

Franciscan Action Network

Friends Committee on National Legislation

Friends of the Earth United States

Global Health Council

Global Rights for Women

Guttmacher Institute

HIAS

Hindus for Human Rights

Hope Border Institute

Human Rights First

International Center for Research on Women

Invisible Children

J Street

JAMAAT - Jews and Muslims and Allies Acting Together

Jewish Earth Alliance-PA

Journal of Social Encounters

Justice in Motion

Latin America Working Group

Maryknoll Office for Global Concerns

Mennonite Central Committee U.S.

Michigan Interfaith Power & Light

Minnesota Peace Project

MPower Change Action Fund

National Advocacy Center of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd

National Council of Churches

NETWORK Lobby for Catholic Social Justice

Nonviolent Peaceforce

Oxfam America

PAI

PartnersGlobal

Pax Christi USA

Peace Direct

Physicians for Human Rights

Planned Parenthood Action Fund

The People's Justice Council

Population Connection Action Fund

Population Council

Population Institute

Presbyterian Church (USA), Office of Public Witness

Robert F. Kennedy Human Rights

Saferworld

Search for Common Ground

Sisters of Mercy of the Americas Justice Team

Sojourners

Together for Girls

Union for Reform Judaism

Unitarian Universalist Service Committee (UUSC)

Unitarian Universalists for Social Justice

United Church of Christ

United Nations Association of the USA (UNA-USA)

The United Methodist Church - General Board of Church and Society

Washington Office on Latin America

Win Without War

Women's Refugee Commission